

Imogene's Song

To: Imogene

From: Fonda Franklin

You taught us to walk in the light, Guided our hearts with your faith and your wisdom. You prayed in the silence of night, Even when we didn't know how much we needed it. Mom, your love was steady, always enough, A gentle word when the days got tough. Now the house feels a little bit quieter, But your laughter and your lessons still echo here. You are always in our hearts, A flame that never fades, We feel you in the morning sun, And every prayer we've ever prayed. Though the world feels different since you're gone, We know your love lives on and on— You are always in our hearts. You stood by us—children, grandkids, and more, A shelter we could always run to. Your support was our open door, Your faith made the darkest days brand new. And though there's a space that can't be replaced, We find you in every act of grace. Sometimes we still hear your voice, Reminding us to trust, to hope, to rejoice. You are always in our hearts, A flame that never fades, We feel you in the morning sun, And every prayer we've ever prayed. Though the world feels different since you're gone, We know your love lives on and on— You are always in our hearts. We love you and miss you, But your spirit carries us through. God filled the empty space. With the memories and the love you gave. You are always in our hearts, A flame that never fades, We feel you in the morning sun, And every prayer we've ever prayed. Though the world feels different since you're gone, We know your love lives on and on— You are always in our hearts.
