

Carol's Song

To: Carol

From: Brandi

Swipe right, winter night, changed my whole life in a screen glow. From NYC city lights to Carolina slow. You hopped on a plane, wild heart, took a chance on me. Now we're making mixtapes out of every memory. Dancing in the kitchen, turning up the stereo. drinking old fashioneds, making up our own show. Your hand in mine – feels like home everywhere we go. From NYC streets to Southern land, you make the world feel close. You're my answer to a prayer I never thought I'd say. And every hello makes the distance fade away. Carol, I love you like crazy. Never saw it coming, but baby. You're my sunrise, my best friend, my peace in the chaos. How did I get so lucky? I thank heaven above. 'Cause loving you, Carol, is more than enough. Forehead kisses, airports, counting down the days. Every two weeks, you fly to me and all the blues just fade. We've run through Rome, touched the sky by the ocean side. But your laughter in my arms—that's my favorite place to hide. Unexpected, unplanned, but it feels so right. I see forever in your eyes every time we say goodnight. Carol, I love you like crazy. Never saw it coming, but baby. You're my sunrise, my best friend, my peace in the chaos. How did I get so lucky? I thank heaven above. 'Cause loving you, Carol, is more than enough. If I could, I'd hold your hand for the rest of my days. Making new stories, writing our names. From city lights to Carolina rain. With you, I wouldn't change a thing. Carol, I love you like crazy. Never saw it coming, but baby. You're my sunrise, my best friend, my peace in the chaos. How did I get so lucky? I thank heaven above. 'Cause loving you, Carol, is more than enough. Never expected, but now I can't imagine. One beat of my heart without you in the pattern. Carol, I love you like crazy—forever and after.
